

ABSTRACT

A method and system of assessing the risk of using industrial equipment to a user allows inputs to be made to a program electronically. When the appropriate inputs have been 5 entered for a plurality of risk factors relating to the industrial equipment, the program will estimate a net risk of injury to the user based on the information inputted and based on evaluation data within the program. The risk evaluation is determined automatically by the program.

10